Duty of the Engineer to his Client.

56. Every member of the Society should perform the work he undertakes to do to the best of his ability and in the true spirit of his engagement, feeling it to be his duty to present all ascertained facts in their true light.

The Client's Obligation to the Adviser.

57. The Civil Engineer has a right to expect from his client the same consideration and deference to his opinion as is by their clients accorded to the members of other professions—Law and Medicine.

for example--and without which the adviser should decline to advise. The surest way for the Engineer to obtain such necessary consideration and deference from the public will be found in his manner of carrying himself.

58. The Assistant Engineer must loyally obey and support his Chief, to whom it will be his duty to report directly on all matters relating to the work on which they may be jointly engaged. His report should be full and explicit on all important points, and exact to the best of the Assistant's knowledge and belief, cloaking nothing, even though going to show that previous reports had been inaccurate or not duly weighed, in some particulars affecting the well being of the business in hand.

Mutual Relations of Chief and Assistant.

59. The Assistant Engineer is entitled to look to his Chief for, and to receive from him, advice for his guidance in the proper performance of his duties, and, where right, to expect his support in matters in dispute between him (the Assistant) and his subordinates, or between him and the contractors working under him. He is also entitled to the aid of the Chief Engineer's professional experience or counsel where unlooked for or extraordinary difficulties present themselves, or changes of original plan may be called for in the work on which they are associated, so that responsibility may be fairly apportioned between them.

60. It is the duty of both Chief and Assistant, each in his department, to study proper economy in the doing of the work, the management of which they have undertaken, and in every way consistent with the maintaining of the good character of the work to make the client's interest the guiding object.

Duties of Chief and Assistant.

61. The Engineer may legitimately suggest experiments with a view to improvement, whether in methods of doing the work which he oversees, or for raising its character; but such experiments should only be undertaken with the full consent and co-operation of the party, whether client or contractor, on whom the expense may fall, and on the understanding that to them will accrue all pecuniary benefit from the success of the experiment.

Experiments in Methods of Work.

62. It shall be considered unprofessional for any Member of this Society to seek the position of an expert to report on any work that is in charge of a recognized Engineer.

Unprofessional Conduct.

63. It shall be the duty of any Engineer, before examining any work with a view to report thereon, to give the Engineer due notice before going on with the investigation, in order that he may have every facility to explain and sustain his methods of carrying on the work in question.

Professional Services of Engineers to each other.

64. Interchange of professional assistance between Members, as tending to promote fraternal intercourse and mutual good-will, is not to be discouraged, but neither is it to be considered obligatory on a Member to respond to the request of a Fellow Member for professional counsel or assistance. Service so rendered must be entirely voluntary on the part of the Member whose aid is sought.

Pecuniary
Matters,
Advertising,
etc

65. The Civil Engineer may, consistently with professional status, take out patents for new inventions or for improvements on old ones, and may sell or otherwise dispose of the patents for his own advantage. He may undertake surveys and the engineering of works by contract, or he may take contracts for the construction of works on a percentage of their cost. Advertising with a view to attracting business should, where resorted to, be as far as possible free from egotistic or self-laudatory references, and expressed in language not derogatory to the dignity of the profession.

Duties of the Engineer to the Public.

66. The Civil Engineer whose advice is sought in respect to the usefulness, practicability and cost of a work should, before expressing his opinion, obtain reliable information on all points involved in the matter submitted to his judgment, including the probable paying capacity of the contemplated undertaking. He must be cautious how he recommends large preliminary outlay, should avoid connecting himself with schemes or projects of merely speculative character, always bearing in mind that his professional reputation will be to a great extent judged by the inherent merits and commercial value of the undertakings with which his name may come to be associated.

(d) Unless he is a member of the corporation of land surveyors at the time of the passing of this act, and at any time thereafter becomes a corporate member of the society.

3. The following persons only shall, after the coming into force of this act, be admitted as corporate members of the society to practice in the Province of Quebec:

(a) All persons, being practicing civil engineers within the Province, at the time of the coming into force of this act, who, within one year therefrom, apply for admission to and pay the subscription fees required under the by-laws of the society; the application must be supported by an affidavit verifying the allegations of the application;

9. No person practicing the profession of civil engineer, and not entitled to do so under this act, shall recover before any court of justice any sum of money for the professional services rendered in such practice.

10. Any person who, not being registered as a member of the said society, takes or makes use of any such name, title or designation as mentioned, or assumes the title of civil engineer, shall be liable upon summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty-five dollars for the first offence, and not exceeding one hundred dollars for any subsequent offence.

11. Nothing in this act shall be deemed to encroach upon the rights and privileges conferred upon provincial land surveyors by any act of the Legislature of this Province.

12. This act shall come into force on the day of its sanction.

The term of ten years will be reduced to eight years in the case of any candidate who has graduated with honours in his Engineering course. In every case the candidate must have had responsible charge of work for at least five years, and this not merely as a skilled workman, but as an Engineer qualified to design or direct Engineering works.

Qualification of Members.

8. The applicant shall give as references at least five Corporate Members, from whom the Council shall obtain satisfactory evidence in writing that they personally know the candidate, and that he is worthy of promotion.

Mode of promotion to several classes.

Notification of election.

15. On the election of a candidate, he shall be immediately notified by the Secretary (Form C in the Appendix). On receipt of the notification he must subscribe to the Constitution and By-Laws (in the terms set forth in Form D in the Appendix), and pay to the Treasurer the regular fees before he can be entitled to the privileges of membership.

Certificates of Membership.

16. All certificates of membership issued to Members are the property of the Society, and must be returned by any Member who has resigned, or whose name has been removed from the roll of membership, within one week of his receipt of notice of such removal or acceptance of resignation.

EXPULSION.

Expulsion.

17. Upon the request of ten or more Members, that, for causes specified, a Member of the Society should be expelled, the Council shall consider the matter, and, if there shall be sufficient reason, shall advise the said Member that his resignation will be accepted. He may upon demand receive a copy of the charges against him, and present a written defence. Two months after such action on his part the Council shall finally consider the case, and if resignation has not been tendered, or a satisfactory defence made, will then notify the Member that he will be expelled in one month, unless he elects to appeal from this decision, in which case his appeal shall be voted on by letter ballot.

Neither the Council nor the Members bringing the charge shall vote. If two-thirds of the votes are for expulsion, the Member shall be expelled, and the Council shall notify the said Member and the Society of the result. In case no appeal is made, the Council shall expel the said Member, and notify him and the Society of his expulsion, and such notification shall in any event be the only notice, public or private, taken of the matter.

Expulsion for criminal offence.
